Howzeh, huge source of help for society - 4 /Feb/ 2009

Islamic Revolution Leader Ayatollah Sayyed Ali Khamenei in a meeting with the secretary and the board of directors of the Qom theological school Wednesday said the religious hub was a huge and rich source of help for the society, adding that the school's directors were supposed to steer the profound source in a way that the society and the community of Alims are more served than before.

Ayatollah Khamenei appreciated that progress was tangible in planning and management of the religious center, adding that objectives of the research center would be further realized once specialized working groups and modules are developed under the overall curricular methodology of the center.

Ayatollah Khamenei welcomed several proposals put forward by the center's authorities prior to his remarks regarding the educational situation of the religious center and said that the proposals should be put into action flawlessly so that they bear favorable results.

Ayatollah Khamenei moreover urged the authorities to assess levels of achievements in their programs, adding that the center's high council had the capacity to help the board of directors to reach the objectives.

In the beginning of the meeting, Ayatollah Yazdi, secretary of the Howzeh (the religious center) delivered a report on activities and said that the high council of Howzeh had policy-setting top on agenda in the new educational year.

Ayatollah Moqtadayi, director of Howzeh too offered a report on the formation of specialized working groups, educational and research planning and activities to boost the provincial branches of Howzeh.