Purification of the Interior of Body Parts - 19 /Aug/ 2019

Did you know…

The interior of such body parts as the mouth and the nose become canonically pure simply by the removal of the impure substance, and there is no need for a process of purification. Likewise, if the exterior of the body of an animal or the beak of a bird becomes canonically impure—such as if it becomes tainted with blood or an impure liquid—it becomes purified once the impure substance disappears
