Dear students

I respect your general meeting and ask Allah for your success and progress. You are now in the prime of your life, a period — praise be to God — full of energy and beauty due to the efforts you make in the way of studying science and acquiring knowledge.

Fortunately, your country and people owing to their firm determination have also attained the prime period in their life which is full of progress, hope and prosperity. A nation — with a rich history, a firm determination, a clear goal, and a heart full of hope — will definitely and inevitably have great and luminous future. We could have access to all that by the blessings of Islam. Today the pleasant symphony of development and national honor can be heard in Iran. You, the youth, must prepare yourselves to assume the responsibilities that the continuity of this movement has put on the shoulders of every Iranian citizen especially the elite in science and knowledge.

Ask Allah for help and guidance, make your pure and shiny hearts closer and closer to Him, the Exalted, and prepare yourselves to take part in the development and progress of your country and people.

May Allah assist and guide you.

Sayyid Ali Khamenei
